COUNCIL TO THE GOVERNOR. Enlargement of the Legislative Committee-Latest Phases of the Conference Question.

In the Senate vesterday a message was received from the House of Delegates by Mr. A. Fulkerson informing that body that the House had adopted a resolution adding the Speaker of the House and President of the Senate to the joint committee to be appointed to confer with the representatives of the fereign bendbolders with reference to the settlement of the State debt. The

Mr. Diggs moved to pass by, as he considered this action premature. It was time enough to vote on this proposition to enlarge the committee when it becomes positively known that there will be any commission to meet such a committee. He thought the former action in appointing the committee premature, and now to be taking steps to enlarge it was more so.

The Senate refused to pass by. TO APPOINT OUTSQUEES.

Mr. Diggs moved to so amend the resolution as to empower the Governor to appoint three persons not residents of the State on this committee.

This was discussed briefly and voted down; after which the resolution, as it ame from the House, was adopted. So the legislative committee will be increased from eight to ten, and Mr. Massey and Mr. Stuart will be two of orator of the evening Hon. A. M. Waddell, of Wilmington, N. C., a former member of Congress and editor, and well known as an eloquent speaker and vigorous writer.

After some pleasantry in regard to the probable motive which induced the selection of himself as the orator of the occasion, Mr. Waddell said : "These and similar speculations, however, were soon abandoned, and, rejecting every other guess as to why I had been so highly honored. I finally, and in all sincerity, rested in the belief that it was because the distinguished physician and kindly Virginia gentleman who presides over the destinies of the Medical College, in casting about for a speaker for this occasion, thought it would be a neighborly and graceful act to go outside of his own Commonwealth—so prolifie of oraiors—and invite a citizen of that State which is nearer to Virginia geographically, and which ought to be closer to it in heart and sympathy than any other in the Union. The joint performance of public duties and the interchange of social courtesies between Virginians and North Carolianan began one hundred and sixty years ago, in the correspondence which took place between the commissioners appointed to run the boundary-line between the two colonies."

He then quoted extracts from that correspondence which showed that the men of that day were quite as adept at writing graceful and withy things as at running boundary lines—the chief of the Virginia commissioners being Colenel Willian Byrd, and of the North Carolina commissioners he head.

THE BOUNDARY IN HISTORY.

Edward Moseley.

THE SOUNDARY IN HISTORY.

After reading these extracts he said:

"That was in 1727, and, although 161 years have since elapsed, as if unwilling that there should be even an imaginary dividing its between them, the people of the two States have never yot fixed the boundary. Thirteen year after that event—in 1740—when the exposition against Carthagona, in Central America, was fitted out, the regiment commanded by Colonel (and Lieutenant-Governor William Gooch, of Virginia, contained a full company of North Caroliulans. Again in 1758, in the expedition to the Ohio; again in 1758 in the march to Fort DuQuesue, and throughout the Revolutionary was they were associated as brothers, and shared a common glory. And, oh! my friends, last and grandes in that Titanic struggle which shoek this continent and broke the hearts and hopes of millions—when the flery tempest raged throughout your borders for four long, bloody years—what Virginian will ever sait the part that North Carolinians took: To him, if such there be, from every mountain and valley in your Commonwealth the answer comes, and from every forcet and stream. From the farpurpling ridges beyond the pleasant waters of the North Carolinians was grantly to the xating sea, the soil of Virginia is rich with the Dismal swamp, and from the racing Roanoke to where the Potomac sweeps grantly to the xating sea, the soil of Virginia is rich with the Dismal swamp, and from the racing Roanoke of the Dismal swamp, and from the racing Roanoke. The speaker then proceeded to discuss medicine as an intellectual pursuit, saying that in every intellectual pursuit the chief happiness on issed in the consciousness of drawing nearer to it e supreme intellect. He praised the recent work of Mr. Drummond as a noble illustration of the elevating influence of the intellectual life, especially when devoted to a conscientival study of natural phonomena, and showed how no corroborated Huxley and Spencer as to the twin ship of true selence and true religion. He then proceeded to show that from the foundation by the Saracens of the first medical college in Europe to this time the graduates of sectal institution had been in the rand a scientific pro-

grees; and, albuding to America's contribution of highly-cultivated physicians, paid a high tribute to Dr. Draper and Giver Wendell Holmes who have enjoyed world-wide fame as authors. While medicine, however, is an intellectual pursuit, there is no profession that has suffered more from charlatanism. The people ought to be protected by law from this evil in every State.

PERALE DOCTORS.

Alluding to the qualifications necessary for a dector, he said he confined himself to men, and then he drew a picture of the audience weeping over the medical lecture of Dr. Hammoud's heroine, Theodora, in his novel, "A Strong-Minded Woman." While he had no doubt he would himself have wept if ne had been there, still if sudden illness had seized him he would have much preferred to have the services of an old lady of his acquaintance, who insisted that "ellicampane and cumfrey is the beatingest for roomatia' and pocoon root is powerful for a poorly person." He told in admirable style two good stories about this old lady, and then seriously advocated the advantages of having female doctors in certain cases, and predicted that it was only a question of time when they would be a recognized "institution."

At this point Colonel Waddell, basing his

OUR FUTURE.

He then turned to "the spisodid future of the South," and drew a stirring picture of it. He asserted that the one far that iron is produced bere for five dollars in per ton than, in Pennsylvania amounted to a revolution, and, after cetting forth the meaning of this greafact in all its bearings, he asked if the picture was overdrawn. "Possibly it may be," he said, "but if so, I thank God for the faith which puts on the rosy tints. THE BRICKLAYERS.

Bisagreement Between Them and the Bosses Not Yet Settled.

Early in March a circular was sent to each of the brick contractors of Richson and Manchester by Bricklayers Union, No. 1, saying that from the lat of April they would expect nine hours to constitute a days work, with the same compensation which with the same compensation which they had been receiving for a day's work, but to pay only forty cents per hour, as they had been receiving for a day's work, but to pay only forty cents per hour, as they had been doing since the lat of April, 1886. A committee was then appointed from the union to meet the contractors, and a conference was held, but neither side being willing to yield, no compromise settlement could be effected.

The bricklayers at their meeting lats saturday night decided to work through this work and to let their demands begin from Moyday, April '4th. Up to this time no settlement has been reached, and, as far as now appears, there is no good reason for believing that one will be. Several bricklayers have already stopped work.

Most of the contractors have very liftle work on hand and say they can very well afford to suspend operations for a short while. There are a few, however, who have contracts that may give them trouble if there is anything and when a manufacture and the additional conditions and an easy there is no good reason for believing that one will be. THE CONTESTED-WILL CASE. The County Court was in session for a short while yesterday. Mr. Joseph H. Turner took an appeal from Judge Minor's decision in the Cotmans will case, and the case goes up to the Cir cuit Court.

Mr. James Cotmans, in his will, di-rected that Mr. Turner should serve as his executor without giving security and Mr. Turner qualified under thi provision. The legatees contested hi right to qualify without giving bond, and Judge Minor, after hearing the evidence and argument of counsel, de cided to require Turner to give bond. When this decision was rendered Turner was given until yesterday to decide whether he would give security or take an appeal.

BOAD MATTERS

The court adjourned over until to morrow, when several road matters will be considered. A petition was presented to the court some time ago asking that a turnpike be run from the Me road. The Judge desired to go over the proposed route before action on the pe-tition, and his decision will be given to-morrow. Another matter connected with the roads of the county, which it is expected the Judge will then decide, is the motion of citizens on the Broad-Street road for a writ of mandamus compelling the Eoard of Supervisors to put said road in good order. The

The docks will be located at the New York and Norfolk among their number are artists of ability in their several specialities. cated at the New York and Norfolk navy-yards, and will be built by contract on the general plan of the Simpson dry-docks. They will be con-structed of timber, and the dimensions will be about as follows: Length, 435 will be about as follows: Length, 259 feet; width at top, 125 feet; and width at bottom, 60 feet. The amount of money available for their construction is .31,100,000. The New York dock will cost more than the dock at Norfelk, owing to the difficulty of obtaining a good foundation. A good foundation of blue clay and gravel can be obtained at Norfolk at the depth of thirty-five feet, while at New York innumerable quicksafids and springs are found at a similar depth, necessitating heavy piling to obtain a foundation capable of supporting a vessel of 6,000 to 10,000 tons in weight. The exact location in the yards of the two docks cannot be determined, but borings will be made within a short time to ascertain the nature of the foundation.

calloused, hard, and dirty.

(By telegraph to the Dispatch.) St. Johns, N. F., March 31.—A report has reached here of the total loss of the sealing steamer Eagle, with a crew of 250 men, on the shoals near Funk island, off Bonavista bay. No particulars of the disaster are yet at hand. Debris consisting of deck-ladders, forecastle deck, and cooking gear, with the steamer's name on it, have been found on the ice. The supposition is that the steamer's boiler exploded.

The reported loss of the steamer Eagle is confirmed by the discovery of wreck-age on Bonavista bay. The crew num-bered 250 men, and there is nothing to Provide for these unforeseca calamities by sechring policies in the large and responsible companies represented by George C. Jefferson, General Insu steamer's name, were found on the ice, and the inhabitants are on the outlook for bodies of the drowned. The con dition of the wreckage leads to the belief that the vessel was lothrough a boiler-explosion. Most of the lost seamen lived in and about St. John's, and the excitement an grief here are intense. Women and children are weeping at home or clam-oring at the telegraph and newspaper offices for further information.
